50% concession for Pensioners, copy card

From 1 November 2013 all new dogs, that is pups and other dogs being registered for the first time, and dogs where ownership is changing will need to be microchipped. All dangerous dogs will have to be microchipped by 30 November 2013. All other dogs do not have to be microchipped until 1 November 2015.

Any dog should not be released from the pound before being microchipped - this is at the owner's expense.

Registration

Dogs owned by the Crown are exempt from the provisions of the Act, including registration. The exemption for foxhound packs has been removed, as has the exception for dogs in kennels. While dogs normally kept in kennels will now have to be individually registered, the registration concession rate will continue to apply to kennel owners ($200).

The option for lifetime registration is now available at a cost of $100 for a sterilised dog and $250 for an unsterilised dog. Pensioners pay half these amounts. Dangerous dogs must be registered annually.

Local government has been given the power to waive registration fees in circumstances where it is believed to be in the best interests of the management and control of dogs.

The only (partial) refund of registrations fees will occur when an unsterilised dog is subsequently sterilised.

Owners can nominate an alternative contact on their registration form - this will enable local governments to deal with a dog where the owner is not contactable.

Dangerous Dogs

The Act provides for three categories of dangerous dogs: dangerous dog (restricted breed), dangerous dog (declared) and commercial security dog. The following conditions apply to all three categories:

- Requirement for dog to wear a special identifying collar, be muzzled, on a lead and under the control of an adult capable of controlling the dog when in public (except when a commercial security dog is working);
- The dog must be confined in an enclosure that is constructed to prevent the dog from escaping, from being released or removed by another person without the owner's permission, and to prevent a child less than seven years old from entering or inserting part of their body. Warning signs must be displayed at every entrance.

Additionally restricted breeds must be sterilised and cannot be bought, sold or transferred except under very limited circumstances. Local governments will not be required to identify restricted breeds - a question to this effect appears on the new Registration Form.

Penalties

Penalties have been increased for all offences. A higher level of maximum penalty is specified for offences by dangerous dogs. In some cases, minimums also apply.

Dog attacks have been differentiated with the creation of two offences: of attacking or chasing where injury is caused and where no injury has been caused.
